NASOG launches career website dedicated to obstetrics and gynaecology

Obstetricians and gynaecologists, and staff working in the specialty, now have access to a dedicated online career centre website which features job listings and a range of resources to help them during their careers.

The website is the first career centre website specifically dedicated to Australia's obstetricians and gynaecologists, and those working within obstetric and gynaecology practices, and is designed to meet the needs of the specialty.

It features a range of resources and tools to support job seekers in the specialty. The resources also are ideal for trainees and new graduate fellows.

Dr Gary Swift, President of NASOG, said the website not only accommodates specialists looking for opportunities, but also is an invaluable resource for trainees looking for training positions and those seeking practice partnership opportunities.

"Our theme of the site is Connecting Talent With Opportunity," Dr Swift said.

"As a professional body, it is part of our value proposition to connect specialists with opportunity, but also to provide a platform that can assist them as practice owners needing support staff. The site delivers that, and is an important part of NASOG's focus on providing practical benefits for members and their practices," Dr Swift said.

"I am very excited that NASOG has launched this career centre and the resources accessible through it will particularly help our members, their staff and the broader specialty.

"The fact that this is a first for the country's obstetricians and gynaecologists reflects the leadership and innovation that NASOG is focussed on providing.

"This career centre is a benefit to all those interested in public and private practice, and covers all the sub-specialties within obstetrics and gynaecology.

"Regardless of whether you are seeking a new opportunity, need practice staff, or have roles to fill in hospitals, the NASOG career centre is the go to place."

Dr Swift said an added feature on the career centre homepage was a link to NASOG's Find a Specialist tool, which helps consumers find a specialist by specialty or postcode.

"The find a specialist tool is a benefit of NASOG membership, and we are pleased to have another platform to provide exposure for our members," Dr Swift said.

The career centre can be accessed via www.nasog.org.au.
